Where can women apply for Family PACT and how long does it take to get approved?

- Applicants apply at Family PACT provider offices and are considered eligible after application. The provider confirms eligibility and the application is sent electronically to the state the same day for final confirmation. The provider gives the applicant a Health Access Programs card for use with Family PACT visits. (The HAP card is used with the Breast Cancer Early Detection Program as well as other health programs.) Coverage is good for one year, but eligibility must be reconfirmed at every visit (the provider should ask the woman/man whether their income is still the same, etc.). At one year, another application must be filled out.

What services are provided?

- Family PACT provides contraceptive education and counseling, family planning services (all methods of contraception, including male and female sterilization and emergency contraception), pregnancy testing, limited infertility services, and sexually transmitted disease screening and treatment.

Please Note: Screening mammography is not a Family PACT Benefit. Uninsured or underinsured female clients in need of screening mammography may be referred to the Department of Health Care Services (DHCS), Every Woman Counts (EWC) program. Women apply through the toll-free number 1-800-511-2300.

How do women and men get services?

- By making an appointment with a Family PACT provider. Women and men may call 1-800-942-1054 (English and Spanish) for the name of a provider or clinic in their area.

Does using the Family PACT program hurt a person's chances of adjusting their immigration status?

- No, using Family PACT or other health services should not affect the person's ability to adjust their immigration status. Health care is not considered a public charge.
